

Introduce Yourself

Joining the Johnson & Johnson Talent Hub isn't just another sign-up form, it's a way to put yourself on the radar of one of the world's biggest and most respected companies before you're even applying for a job.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

Recruiters Can Find You

Most people think you only get hired by applying to job postings. But companies like J&J also search their talent community when new roles open. If your profile is in the Talent Hub, you're part of the group they look at first.

You Hear About Opportunities Early

When J&J has internships, early-career programs, or entry-level jobs, they notify people in their talent community before the general public. That means you get a head start - sometimes weeks earlier than everyone else.

You Show Initiative

Recruiters notice when students take steps to connect with a company. Filling out the Talent Hub form signals that you're motivated, curious, and thinking ahead about your future.

You Build a Professional Presence Early

Most high school students don't have a resume full of experience yet, and that's okay. The Talent Hub lets you start building a professional profile now, so when you do start applying, you already have a foundation.

It Helps Your Explore Career Paths

J&J is involved in healthcare, engineering, technology, supply chain, marketing, and more. By joining the Talent Hub, you can learn about different career paths and discover roles you might not have known existed.

Low Effort, High Reward

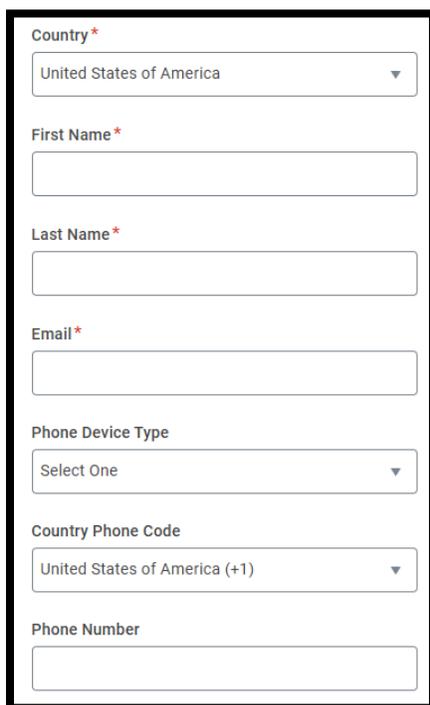

It takes only a few minutes to fill out, and it costs nothing. But it can open doors to internships, events, future job opportunities, and more.
